Breath, Eyes, Memory (1994)

Edwidge Danticat

A violent sexual secret binds four generations of Haitian women in this book about forgiveness and reconciliation. Young Sophie is sent from Haiti and her Tante Aïe to New York to live with her mother. Culturally uprooted, Sophie must adjust to a life very different than the one she has previously known. Her mother's dark secret haunts them both, and it is not until Sophie returns to Haiti with her own daughter that she is able to view her mother with a new-found sense of compassion and love.

Major Characters:

Sophie Cato, Young Woman, Daughter (of Martine)

Tante Aïe, Aunt (of Sophie), Guardian

Martine, Mother (of Sophie)
